ON-LINE SAFETY TIPS TO SHARE WITH YOUR CHILDREN

Talk to your children about the following risks:

- Explain that online information and images can remain accessible forever. It can be very hard and sometimes impossible to take down information that is posted, and photos and information that might have already been copied and posted elsewhere.
- Tell your children not to post any identifying information online. That includes their cell phone number, address, hometown, school name, birth date and anything else that a stranger could use to locate them.
- Explain that anyone in the world can access what they post online. Tell your children that some college admissions boards and employers are checking social networking sites before they admit students or make hiring decisions.
- Make sure that children understand that some people they meet online might not be who they say they are. Explain that on the Internet, many people are not truthful about their identity and might even pretend to be someone else. It's important to stress that young people should never meet people face-to-face that they met online.
- Tell your children never e-mail a picture of themselves to strangers.
- Explain to your children if somebody says something to them, sends them something, or see something that makes them uncomfortable, don't look around or explore; call you instead.
- Tell your children not to open up e-mails, files, or Web pages that they get from people they don't really know or trust.
- Tell children never to give out their password, except to responsible adults in their family.
- Please advise your children to always follow family's rules for the Internet - they're there to make sure that they have fun and stay safe online.
- Tell your children not to ever do anything that could cost the family money unless parents are aware.
